

Screenshots below are from the 2019 Girl Scout Gold Award Yearbook. See original document (pages 1 and 40) at the following link:

https://www.girlscoutsla.org/content/dam/girlscouts-girlscoutsla/documents/publications/2019_Gold_Award_Yearbook.pdf

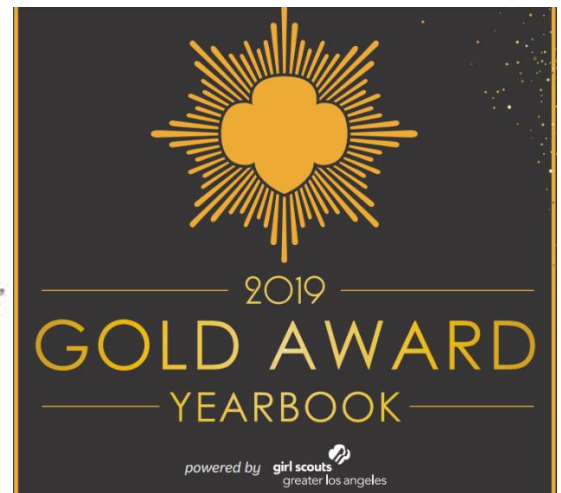

SARAH URIARTE

South Pasadena

HEALTH FOR HAPPINESS

"I hosted three health events in order to educate teens on how to better care for their mental, emotional and physical well-being."

A more detailed description of the Gold Award project and Planned Parenthood's role can be found in the following news articles:

<https://southpasadenan.com/girl-scout-gold-awards-young-women-earn-rare-honor/> "I also organized a school-wide health fair that consisted of booths from various health organizations in order to educate students on what good health is and to promote healthy habits for them to live long, happy lives."

<http://tigernewspaper.com/sarah-uriarte-assiduous-beyond-her-years/> "Once in high school, [Sarah] took action, and her incredible descent into the medical fields has spanned disciplines and communities. At SPHS, she is known for founding Tiger Medicine, a school club, and creating the Health Fair, which hosts roughly 20 local health organizations including Planned Parenthood, Keck Medicine, and the Red Cross."

<https://southpasadenareview.com/girl-scout-organizes-first-ever-health-fair-at-south-pas-high/>

"Representatives from roughly 15 organizations responded to Uriarte's invitation to attend the event, which was held during lunch last Friday, March 23 in the SPHS main gym.

Members of the University of Southern California's Keck School of Medicine set up booths about sleep disorders, family medicine and stress tips. The American Foundation for Suicide Prevention, Lifesaver Education, the YMCA, South Pasadena Smiles, APLA Health, Planned Parenthood, SPHS Peer Mediators, and LA CADA, among others, also set up booths."